Caring Info, a program of the National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization (NHPCO), is a national consumer engagement initiative to improve care at the end of life.

It's About How You LIVE

It's About How You LIVE is a national community engagement campaign encouraging individuals to make informed decisions about end-of-life care and services. The campaign encourages people to:

Learn about options for end-of-life services and care
Implement plans to ensure wishes are honored
Voice decisions to family, friends and health care providers
Engage in personal or community efforts to improve end-of-life care

Note: The following is not a substitute for legal advice. While Caring Info updates the following information and form to keep them up-to-date, changes in the underlying law can affect how the form will operate in the event you lose the ability to make decisions for yourself. If you have any questions about how the form will help ensure your wishes are carried out, or if your wishes do not seem to fit with the form, you may wish to talk to your health care provider or an attorney with experience in drafting advance directives.

Using these Materials

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

1. Check to be sure that you have the materials for each state in which you may receive health care.

2. These materials include:
    - Instructions for preparing your advance directive, please read all the instructions.
    - Your state-specific advance directive forms, which are the pages with the gray instruction bar on the left side.

ACTION STEPS

1. You may want to photocopy or print a second set of these forms before you start so you will have a clean copy if you need to start over.

2. When you begin to fill out the forms, refer to the gray instruction bars — they will guide you through the process.

3. Talk with your family, friends, and physicians about your advance directive. Be sure the person you appoint to make decisions on your behalf understands your wishes.

4. Once the form is completed and signed, photocopy the form and give it to the person you have appointed to make decisions on your behalf, your family, friends, health care providers, and/or faith leaders so that the form is available in the event of an emergency.

5. You may also want to save a copy of your form in an online personal health records application, program, or service that allows you to share your medical documents with your physicians, family, and others who you want to take an active role in your advance care planning.

Introduction to Your Washington Advance Directive

This packet contains a Washington Advance Directive, which protects your right to refuse medical treatment you do not want or to request treatment you do want in the event you lose the ability to make decisions yourself. You may complete Part I, Part II, Part III, or any or all parts, depending on your advance-planning needs. You must complete Part IV.

Part I, Washington Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care, lets you name someone, called an "attorney-in-fact," to make decisions about your health care—including decisions about life-sustaining treatments—if you can no longer speak for yourself. This is especially useful because it appoints someone to speak for you any time you are unable to make your own health care decisions, not only at the end of life.

Part I goes into effect when your doctor and one other doctor determine that you are no longer capable of making or communicating your health care decisions.

Part II, Washington Declaration, lets you state your wishes about health care in the event you cannot speak for yourself and you develop a terminal condition or you are permanently unconscious.

Part II goes into effect when your doctor and one other doctor determine that you are no longer capable of making or communicating your health care decisions and diagnose you in writing with a terminal condition or as permanently unconscious.

Part III allows you to record your organ and tissue donation wishes.

Part IV contains the signature and witnessing provisions so that your document will be effective.

This form does not expressly address mental illness and behavioral health. If you would like to make advance care plans regarding mental illness and behavioral health, you should talk to your physician and an attorney about Washington's mental health advance directive so you can tailor it to your needs.

Note: This document will be legally binding only if the person completing it is a competent adult (at least 18 years old).

INSTRUCTIONS FOR COMPLETING YOUR WASHINGTON ADVANCE DIRECTIVE

How do I make my Washington Advance Directive legal?

If you complete Part II and/or Part III, you must either:

Alternative 1: Sign your document in the presence of two adult witnesses. Your witnesses cannot be:

- related to you,
- entitled to any portion of your estate,
- a person who has a claim against your estate, or
- your attending physician, an employee of your attending physician, or an employee of a health facility in which you are a patient.

In addition, if you have completed Part III, one of your witnesses must also be disinterested with regard to any anatomical gift you make (i.e., they are not interested in receiving your organs).

Alternative 2: Sign and acknowledge your document before a notary public or other individual authorized by law to take acknowledgements.

There are no specific witnessing requirements if you complete ONLY Part I. However, you should consider having your signature witnessed in the same manner in order to avoid any problems in the event your advance directive is challenged.

Whom should I appoint as my attorney-in-fact?

Your attorney-in-fact is the person you appoint to make decisions about your health care if you become unable to make those decisions yourself. Your attorney-in-fact may be a family member or a close friend whom you trust to make serious decisions. The person you name as your attorney-in-fact should clearly understand your wishes and be willing to accept the responsibility of making health care decisions for you.

You can appoint a second person as your alternate attorney-in-fact. The alternate will step in if the first person you name as an attorney-in-fact is unable, unwilling, or unavailable to act for you.

The person you appoint as your attorney-in-fact cannot be:

- your doctor,
- an employee of your doctor, or
- an administrator, owner, or employee of a health care facility in which you are a patient at the time you sign your advance directive.

However, you may appoint any of the individuals listed above if he or she is also your spouse, state registered domestic partner, adult child, brother or sister.

Should I add personal instructions to my Washington Advance Directive?

One of the strongest reasons for naming an attorney-in-fact is to have someone who can respond flexibly as your health care situation changes and deal with situations that you did not foresee. If you add instructions to this document it may help your attorney-in-fact carry out your wishes, but be careful that you do not unintentionally restrict your attorney-in-fact's power to act in your best interest. In any event, be sure to talk with your attorney-in-fact about your future medical care and describe what you consider to be an acceptable "quality of life."

What if I change my mind?

You may revoke your Health Care Directive at any time by:

- Canceling, defacing, obliterating, burning, tearing, or otherwise physically destroying your Directive or having another destroy it for you at your direction and in your presence,
- Executing a written and dated revocation, or
- Orally expressing your intent to revoke your Directive.

Your revocation becomes effective on communication to your attending physician and your attorney-in-fact, if you have appointed one.

Note: If you registered an advance directive with the Washington State Living Will Registry prior to July 1, 2011, you should notify the registry if you make changes to or revoke that advance directive. The Washington State Living Will Registry discontinued on July 1, 2011, but you can still access your advance directive if filed prior to that date. To do so visit: http://www.doh.wa.gov/AboutUs/ProgramsandServices/DiseaseControlandHealthStatistics/CenterforHealthStatistics/LivingWillRegistry.aspx.

Is there anything else I should know?

If you are pregnant and your doctor is aware of your pregnancy, your advance directive will have no force or effect during the course of your pregnancy.

PART I. Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care

I understand that my wishes as expressed in my advance directive may not cover all possible aspects of my care if I become incapacitated. Consequently, there may be a need for someone to accept or refuse medical intervention on my behalf, in consultation with my physician.

You Have Filled Out Your Health Care Directive, Now What?

1. Your Washington Advance Directive is an important legal document. Keep the original signed document in a secure but accessible place. Do not put the original document in a safe deposit box or any other security box that would keep others from having access to it.

2. Give photocopies of the signed original to your attorney-in-fact and alternate attorney-in-fact, doctor(s), family, close friends, clergy, and anyone else who might become involved in your health care. If you enter a nursing home or hospital, have photocopies of your document placed in your medical records.

3. Be sure to talk to your attorney-in-fact(s), doctor(s), clergy, family, and friends about your wishes concerning medical treatment. Discuss your wishes with them often, particularly if your medical condition changes.

4. You may also want to save a copy of your form in an online personal health records application, program, or service that allows you to share your medical documents with your physicians, family, and others who you want to take an active role in your advance care planning.

5. If you want to make changes to your documents after they have been signed and witnessed, you must complete a new document.

6. Remember, you can always revoke your Washington document.

7. Be aware that your Washington document will not be effective in the event of a medical emergency. Ambulance and hospital emergency department personnel are required to provide cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) unless they are given a separate directive that states otherwise. These directives called "prehospital medical care directives" or "do not resuscitate orders" are designed for people whose poor health gives them little chance of benefiting from CPR. These directives instruct ambulance and hospital emergency personnel not to attempt CPR if your heart or breathing should stop.

Currently not all states have laws authorizing these orders. We suggest you speak to your physician if you are interested in obtaining one. CaringInfo does not distribute these forms.
